It is pleasing to see that the crimes reported in the parish of Glemsford are still low compared to the same period last year. However it is important residents remain vigilant on their home security with Christmas fast approaching.

Now the nights are getting longer and the temperature is dropping, I feel it would be appropriate to give some road safety advice. A safe journey starts in the preparation the night before. Check the weather forecast, if it's going to be cold, put a protective sheet over the windscreen (available from most good vehicle accessory shops) or get up 15 minutes earlier to allow enough time to fully defrost your car before you set off. Please don't pour hot water on your windscreen. Although the windscreen companies will love all the extra business from the shattered windscreen, I'm sure you can think of better ways of spending your time and hard earned money.

One mistake that many drivers make when it snows, is to only clear the snow from the windows of their vehicles. It is important to clear the snow from the bonnet and the roof of your car. The reason for this is that whilst you are driving along, the snow on your bonnet will be blown up onto your windscreen, instantly obscuring your vision and potentially leading to you having an accident. Likewise, the snow on the roof of your car will be blown off onto the windscreen of the vehicle following you, causing exactly the same result to their windscreen. Do you really want to be responsible for causing an accident?

Think carefully if your journey is really necessary. If it is, allow a greater stopping distance between you and the car in front especially on wet or icy roads. Generally there is a 2 second rule on normal dry roads, you should at least double this on wet or icy roads.

Hopefully you find these tips useful and will help you have a safe and enjoyable festive period with your friends and loved ones.
